DAILY BRIEF — ZORAH'S DAILY HOME

YOUR DAY

A 3:15 Friday, Shabbat Bereshit, and a sunny start to the long weekend

Tishrei 28 · challah, grilled cheese, wraps, soup, fries and salad at RHA · candles at 6:26 · sunny, about 20°C by mid-afternoon.

Zorah, today is a short day at RHA, with dismissal at 3:15. Friday lunch is the big one: challah, grilled cheese, wraps, soup, fries and salad. It is also Shabbat Bereshit, when the Torah reading starts again from the very beginning, and candles are at 6:26 p.m.

It is a cold, clear start, about 8°C at 7 a.m. and feeling closer to 5°C, so a warm layer makes sense. The sun stays out all day and takes it to about 20°C around 3 p.m., right at pickup, with no rain in the forecast.

Saturday has hockey practice from 10:30 to 11:30 and the sleepover at Stone's from 3:30, and Shabbat ends at 7:25. Sunday looks rainy, with the 12:55 swim and Rosh Chodesh Cheshvan, and Monday is Thanksgiving, with no school.

THE GLOBE AND MAIL

A Prince Edward County farmer and chef roasts two small turkeys instead of one big one

Zach Littlejohn, who often hosts 15 to 25 people for Thanksgiving, told The Globe and Mail how he preps the bird a day or two early so the holiday itself is easier.

Zach Littlejohn is a chef, sommelier and farmer at Littlejohn Farm in Prince Edward County, where he usually hosts 15 to 25 people for Thanksgiving. His main advice is to do most of the work before the day. A day or two ahead, he debones the turkey thighs, ties the bird and brines it so it stays juicier. He also roasts two smaller turkeys instead of one large one, because a big bird is hard to cook evenly in a home oven.

He roasts at 350°F with herbs, a sliced whole head of garlic and two halved shallots in the cavity. The bird sits on onions, carrots and celery, with a cup of dry white wine and a litre of cold water in the pan, which turns the drippings into stock for gravy. He takes it out at 160°F and lets it rest for half an hour, since the temperature keeps rising. After carving, he drizzles the platter with olive oil, adds flaky salt and puts it under the broiler for one minute. The leftover vegetables and bones go into a pot of soup for the next few days.

WHO WHAT WEAR

Who What Wear's Maxine Eggenberger says a checked jacket is the piece to buy before a coat

Maxine Eggenberger writes that it is not quite cold enough for a coat, so this is the time of year when a good jacket does most of the work in an outfit. Checks were everywhere over the summer as a '90s-style flannel shirt, and she says the same pattern has now moved into jackets. On the fall runways, Burberry, Chanel, Dries Van Noten, Paul Costelloe, Missoni and Emporio Armani all showed checks, from very large puffers to wool blazers with strong shoulders.

Her advice is practical. She wears mostly black, navy and neutrals, so she would pick a check that includes those shades and goes with everything she owns. If your closet is already full of colour, a quieter check can help carry those brighter pieces into the cooler months. She suggests wearing one with your usual jeans or black trousers, and she says the first new thing she bought this season was a cropped checked trench from Zara that ties at the waist.

THE TOWN

ON THE TOWN

Thanksgiving Long Weekend at the Toronto Zoo

Saturday, Oct. 10, to Monday, Oct. 12, 9:30 a.m. to 6 p.m. (last entry one hour before closing) at Toronto Zoo, Rouge National Urban Park. The zoo has five indoor tropical pavilions, which are useful if Sunday's rain arrives, and 10 km of trails for the drier days. The newest arrival is Maple, a baby pygmy hippo born Aug. 2, who lives in the African Pavilion. On weekends and holidays there is also a ropes course called the Gorilla Climb, with 26 elements set nearly 33 feet above the ground.

Coffee Culture Festival: Coffee City

Friday, Oct. 16, to Sunday, Oct. 18, 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. daily at Design Exchange, Financial District. For one weekend, all three floors of the Design Exchange are set up as a "Coffee City" of cafés, roasters and home brewing setups. The Canadian National Latte Art Championship runs live for all three days, and there are hands-on workshops in latte art and blending your own coffee beans. Organizers ask visitors to reserve a spot online before they go.

PUZZLES

Friday lunch at RHA: challah, grilled cheese, wraps, fries, soup and salad. Jonah counts six.

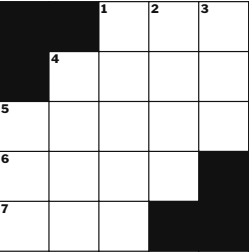

Home at 3:15, he reports that school made six things, so dinner should have six too.

It is Shabbat Bereshit. Six things were made, and on the seventh, the cook rested.

DEAR TIMES

Should the swim bag go to the sleepover?

Dear Times, My son has hockey from 10:30 to 11:30 on Saturday, then a sleepover at a friend's from 3:30 p.m. until 9 the next morning. His swim lesson is at 12:55 on Sunday. I could pack his swimsuit and towel in the sleepover bag and drive straight to the pool, or I could pick him up, go home and switch bags. Should the swim bag go to the sleepover?

— Three Bags Deep, Toronto

Dear Reader, Keep the swim bag at home. A sleepover bag usually comes back with one sock and somebody else's pillowcase, and a swimsuit is easy to lose in that pile. There are almost four hours between the 9 a.m. pickup and the pool, which is enough time to go home, switch bags and eat lunch. Pack it Friday afternoon, before candles at 6:26, and leave it by the door.
