Pareve apple cake for the second-night dessert

Food Network Kitchen’s oil-based cake can follow the matza ball soup without dairy conflict.

Kim Klatzkin’s Jewish apple cake layers cinnamon-sugar Granny Smith apples through a vanilla batter with orange juice, then bakes in a tube pan for about an hour and a half. Active time is about 30 minutes. Leftovers keep wrapped at room temperature for a couple of days; a honey drizzle is optional for the new year.

RECOMMENDED · FASHION

Fall 2026 style that starts with what you already own

Vogue’s August 19 guide frames the season as contrast and styling more than a wardrobe overhaul.

Themes include soft “Updated Lady” suiting, Art Deco evening touches, and playful proportions.

The useful move is re-layering familiar cardigans, jackets, and a modern blazer or pleated midi rather than chasing every runway look.

DEAR TIMES

Can I leave the Meet & Greet after one hello loop?

Dear Times, The Parents’ Association Meet & Greet is this morning at 9:00, and I want to show up. My head is already on Friday’s 11:30 dismissal, candle lighting at 7:17, and the matza ball soup and apple cake still waiting for second night. If I make one full pass of hellos, is it acceptable to head out before the chatting settles in for the long haul?

– One-Loop Parent, Toronto

Dear One-Loop Parent, Yes. Arrive on time, greet the people you came to meet, and leave once you have done that pass. A Meet & Greet is built for short introductions, not for finishing every holiday task in the hallway. Put the candle time and the menu on a note for later so they do not run the morning.

NOTICES

PUBLIC NOTICE: GREETING HOURS

This morning’s Parents’ Association Meet & Greet is a standing welcome, not a second calendar. Smile, then return to Elul 28.

ZOOM IS NOT BREAK-FAST

Monday’s Grade Ambassador Orientation at 8:00 p.m. will not plate leftovers from Rosh Hashanah. Bring only your attention.
