DAILY BRIEF — ZORAH'S DAILY HOME

YOUR DAY

Halloween Saturday: hockey at 12:30, a sleepover at 5, and sun all day

Cheshvan 20 · Parshat Vayera · Clear and crisp, high near 14°C · Shabbat ends 6:53 p.m. · Clocks go back tonight · Daily brief at sdltor.github.io/household-groceries/

Zorah, it is a cold, clear start: about 5°C at 7 a.m., feeling closer to 2°C, under a clear sky. The sun rises at 7:52. It warms to about 12°C by noon and tops out near 14°C late in the afternoon, with light winds. The chance of rain stays at 1% or less all day.

Jonah's hockey is at 12:30, an exhibition game, Sabres vs Leafs; it is about 12°C and sunny at puck drop. His Halloween sleepover starts at 5. Sunset is 6:09 and Shabbat ends at 6:53; it is about 10°C and dry at 7 p.m. for trick-or-treating, and near 8°C by 8.

Tonight the clocks go back one hour, so Sunday starts with an extra hour. Sunday is grey and mild, near 13°C, before Jonah's 12:55 swim. Your Daily brief is at sdltor.github.io/household-groceries/.

Pumpkin and black bean enchiladas: one bowl, one dish, twenty minutes in the oven

Nicole Malik's vegan weeknight dinner uses canned pumpkin, beans and taco seasoning

Nicole Malik's recipe, from her book “Weeknight One-Pot Vegan Cooking,” is built for a busy night. Everything for the filling goes into one bowl: a can of diced tomatoes, a can of black beans, drained and rinsed, a can of pumpkin purée and three tablespoons of taco seasoning. Pumpkin gives it a fall flavour without making things complicated, and the beans make it filling. Spoon about a sixth of the mix down each of six 8-inch tortillas, roll them up, and set them seam side down in a 9-by-13 dish.

Pour a cup and a half of enchilada sauce over the top and bake at 350°F for 20 minutes. Serve with diced avocado, chopped cilantro and sliced jalapeño if you like heat. It serves three, and Malik says you will likely have extra filling: roll more if they fit, or spoon it over mashed potatoes. Our note: it is vegan as written, so it works next to a meat or dairy meal and it suits a busy Halloween night.

FASHION

Last fall's outfits, updated: sleeker, slimmer, and a lot of loafers

Michelle Scanga says fall 2026 is moving away from oversize everything. The oversize blazer, baggy jeans and chunky sneakers become a fitted jacket, slim straight-leg jeans and loafers. Leggings and a big sweater give way to a collared knit with loose jeans and sleek boots. A slim cardigan with classic jeans and ballet pumps replaces the roomy cardigan and clogs. Even relaxed pieces now come balanced with sharper shoes.

Hemlines are creeping up, too: the maxi skirt with a sweater and ankle boots becomes a knee-length skirt with a crisp button-down and a leather jacket. Brown jeans with a tucked button-down are an easy break from blue. For evening, try a fitted shirt with fluid silk pants and a silk scarf. None of it needs a new wardrobe, she says; these are small swaps.

RECOMMENDED

Twenty-three babkas, from chocolate to apricot-pistachio

The Nosher's rule is that babka makes everything better, and this roundup traces the twisted yeast cake to 19th-century Poland before sorting 23 recipes into groups. The classics include a mother's ultimate chocolate babka and an old-fashioned cinnamon-raisin one; the seasonal list has pumpkin spice and a spiced apple babka. Our note: for after a meat meal, look for the dairy-free apricot-pistachio babka in the list.

PUZZLES

12:30 p.m.: Sabres vs Leafs. Coffee raised, voice already gone.

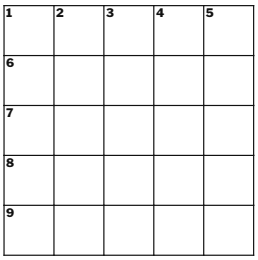

5 p.m.: sleepover time. Costumes on, hockey bag finally retired for the day.

Overnight: the clocks go back. The sweetest treat is the extra hour.

DEAR TIMES

Halloween, Shabbat and a sleepover, all on one Saturday. Where do I start?

Dear Times, My nine-year-old has hockey at lunchtime, a Halloween sleepover at five, and Shabbat doesn't end until almost seven. He wants to know why the sleepover can't start the minute he's home from the rink. And then the clocks go back overnight, so I have no idea when anyone will wake up on Sunday. Any advice for surviving the day?

— Juggling Three Calendars, Toronto

Dear Reader, Make it one plan, not three. Hockey bag unpacked, costume laid out and sleepover bag packed before five, so the handoff takes two minutes. Tell him the party starts when it starts, and the waiting is part of the build-up. Once Shabbat ends at 6:53, you get the evening. As for Sunday: the extra hour is a gift to whoever is not hosting the sleepover. Swim is at 12:55, so even a late wake-up gets him there. It will be cool and dry tonight; tuck a layer under the costume.
