DAILY BRIEF — ZORAH'S DAILY HOME

YOUR DAY

School lets out at 2:30 today for a teacher training afternoon

Tishrei 26 · hot dogs, potato wedges and veggie sticks at RHA · nursery runs a full day · cloudy morning, about 21°C by mid-afternoon.

Zorah, pickup is earlier than usual today. RHA dismisses at 2:30 so teachers can have a professional development afternoon, and the school calendar marks the nursery as a full day. Lunch is hot dogs with potato wedges and veggie sticks.

The morning starts grey at about 13°C. The clouds break up after lunch, and it should be around 20°C at 2:30, close to the warmest part of the day. The rain chance stays near 10%.

Friday is the next short day: Shabbat Bereshit, 3:15 dismissal and candles at 6:26.

Then the long weekend. Saturday has hockey from 10:30 to 2:30 and the sleepover at Stone's from 5. Sunday has the 12:55 swim and the start of Rosh Chodesh Cheshvan, and Monday is Thanksgiving, with no school.

FOOD & WINE

Food & Wine's stovetop applesauce uses four kinds of apples and keeps for a week

Picked for the magazine's Oct. 1 list of new October recipes, it takes 35 minutes, one saucepan and a potato masher.

Food & Wine put a simple stovetop applesauce on its list of 27 new recipes for October, published Oct. 1. It uses about two pounds of mixed apples, roughly four large ones, peeled, cored and cut into small even pieces. The magazine suggests Honeycrisp, Granny Smith, Pink Lady and Golden Delicious, so the sweet apples give it body and the tart ones keep it from tasting too sweet. Everything goes into one saucepan: the apples, water, a little light brown sugar, cinnamon, salt, and small pinches of allspice and nutmeg.

Simmer it covered for 20 to 25 minutes, stirring now and then, until the apples are very soft, then mash it in the pan. A few presses leave it chunky; an immersion blender makes it smooth. Start with less sugar if your apples are sweet. It keeps in the fridge for up to a week, so a batch made this week will still be good on Thanksgiving Monday.

INSTYLE

InStyle's Amanda Le lists eight colours for fall, from royal purple to a deep navy

Amanda Le, writing for InStyle on Oct. 2, listed eight colours that keep showing up on fall runways and in street style. The first is the usual set of neutrals, which Le calls the base of a fall wardrobe. Royal purple is next, suggested for closets that are mostly black, and Le names purple with red as a favourite pairing right now. Burgundy follows, in matching sets, shoes and bags.

Espresso brown is a darker step from chocolate, especially in suede. Teal is on the list partly because WGSN and Coloro named "Transformative Teal" the 2026 colour of the year. Chartreuse showed up at Tory Burch and Diane von Furstenberg. Cream works for one-colour outfits, and midnight, a deep navy, is Le's alternative to black.

DEAR TIMES

Is it a waste to spend a free Saturday night making Thanksgiving sides?

Dear Times, Our son has hockey from 10:30 to 2:30 on Saturday, then a sleepover at a friend's until 10 the next morning. Shabbat ends at 7:25, so we will have Saturday night at home alone. I could go out for dinner, or I could start Monday's Thanksgiving cooking with a pot of applesauce. Is it a waste of a free night to spend it at the stove?

— Apples on the Counter, Toronto

Dear Reader, You can do both. Applesauce takes about 35 minutes, and most of that is simmering with the lid on, so start it when Shabbat ends and book dinner for 8:30. It keeps for a week, so Monday is covered.
