YOUR DAY

Simchat Torah, Jonah-Swimming 12:55–1:25, holiday ends 7:35

Tishrei 23 · Prosserman JCC pool window · overcast high near 20°C · Week 1 lunches start Monday.

Zorah, Sunday is Simchat Torah – RHA marks Tishrei 23 – and Jonah-Swimming runs 12:55 to 1:25 p.m. at the Prosserman JCC. Skies look overcast this morning near 12°C, a high near 20°C, a low near 11°C, and a patchy-rain chance later.

The holiday ends at 7:35 p.m. Looking ahead: Monday starts Week 1 lunches (French toast · fruit cup) and Early Years re-registration; Tuesday is pizza day; Wednesday has a 2:30 dismissal for teacher PD. Daily brief: <https://sdltr.github.io/household-groceries/>

The RAV4 hail repair is closed – car handed in; rental in use. Nothing pending to chase on that this morning.

WEATHER

Date-and-walnut Torah scroll rolls dipped in olive oil

Yossele Golem (The Jewish Edition, Oct 1) — miniature sifrei Torah pastries for V'Zot HaBracha and Asher's oil blessing.

On Simchat Torah, Yossele Golem writes, Moshe's blessing of Asher — dipping a foot in oil — becomes a kitchen joke: crispy dainty rolls shaped like miniature Torah scrolls, filled with dates, walnuts, and cinnamon, then shallow-fried in olive oil.

The filling is a thick date paste with chopped walnuts, cinnamon, vanilla, honey, and a pinch of salt. Roll thin pastry around a filling log (or pair two rolls for an open-scroll look), fry two to three minutes until golden, then brush with warm honey and sesame or pistachios. Pareve, festive, and sized for after Jonah-Swimming before the holiday ends at 7:35.

Half-moon bags and east-west handles for a pool Sunday

Vogue's Alice Cary and Andrea Zendejas (30 Sept 2026) map seven bag shapes for AW26: elongated east-west top-handles, sculptural half-moon (U-shape) bags at Stella, Vuitton, Polo, and Tod's, croc-embossed finishes, supersized shoulder bags that still tuck under an arm, a new clutch era for day and night, rigid all-rounder top-handles, and playful minaudières.

On an overcast Simchat Torah with a mid-day Prosserman pool window and the holiday ending at 7:35, a half-moon day bag or slim east-west carry is the practical layer between swim drop-off and evening. No prices in this paper.

RECOMMENDED • KITCHEN SHELF

Two fall cookbooks after the holiday kitchen settles

Kay Chun's Gather Around My Table (Knopf, Oct 6) promises simple global-pantry weeknights — snacks, pickles, tofu chapter, and low-lift flourishes Eater flagged in its fall 2026 cookbook preview. A calm post-holiday shelf pick when Simchat Torah closes at 7:35 and Week 1 school lunches begin Monday. Kwame Onwuachi and Joshua David Stein's All Hours (Sept 22) is the other stack: bold home recipes for any hour, including Corn Milk French Toast — a playful echo of Monday's French toast • fruit cup lunch — plus snackable Creole roll-ups and showstopping desserts. No prices in this paper.

Event details can change; check the listing before going.

Goggles want a second lap. Torah wants one more dance.

Dear Times, Swimming is 12:55 to 1:25 and the holiday ends at 7:35. The goggles want a second lap. The Torah wants one more dance. Who wins?

– A Reader in Toronto

Dear Reader, Goggles get the midday lane; the holiday keeps the evening. Put the stretch between the pool and sunset on the calendar as open. Monday's French toast lunch is the encore – pack a dry towel.
