KITCHEN · CHOL HAMOED

Moroccan fava soup thick enough for pita

Ron Arazi’s grandmother’s Be’er Sheva Sukkot open-house soup – garlic, lemon, harissa.

Ron Arazi told the Jewish Food Society that Sukkot at his Moroccan-Lebanese grandparents’ home in Be’er Sheva meant one dish every year: a simple fava bean soup with harissa, served as friends and neighbors dropped by the sukkah.

Turmeric and a heap of garlic meet dried split fava beans; the blend finishes with harissa and lemon. It is thick enough that his family scoops it with fresh pita instead of a spoon – a Chol HaMoed supper that does not need a fancy menu.

STYLE DESK · FALL 2026

Fair Isle, tactile texture, and a coat that does the talking

Sara Holzman’s Marie Claire Fall 2026 guide tracks runways that doubled down on craft: Fair Isle knits, tactile brocades and faux fur, sharp tailoring, and statement coats.

Sport-inspired separates and mismatched layering sit beside the heritage knits. For Toronto’s overcast Chol HaMoed week, a Fair Isle under a coat with presence finishes the outfit.

No prices in this paper – treat the edit as a texture checklist, not a shopping list.

THE TOWN

ON THE TOWN · WEEKDAY

Toronto Biennial: Things Fall Apart

Open now through December – waterways-themed contemporary art across the city. Harbourfront Centre is a clear lakefront stop; the Art Museum at U of T is a main exhibition site. Easy weekday look between sukkah meals.

BEES: A Story of Survival

Open daily through Oct 18 at the Royal Ontario Museum – immersive art-and-science show with honeycombs and soundscapes. A solid family outing before it closes mid-October.

RECOMMENDED · WEEKEND HOLD

Distillery Oktoberfest returns Oct 3–4

Pure Spirits Courtyard weekends 2–9 p.m. Park it after Saturday hockey or as a separate food stop; weekday quiet at the District is a walk, not the polka set.

Fair Isle under the coat

For overcast Chol HaMoed errands, a heritage knit under a statement coat covers both warmth and the fall runway brief.

Event details can change; check the listing before going.

DEAR TIMES

Pita or spoon for sukkah soup?

Dear Times, It's Chol HaMoed Monday – hamburger day at RHA – and I'm eyeing Ron Arazi's Moroccan fava bean soup for the sukkah tonight. The Jewish Food Society says it's so thick his family eats it with pita, not a spoon. Do I trust the pita method under the greens, or keep a polite spoon on the table for guests?

– Ladle-Curious in Toronto

Dear Ladle-Curious, Put out both. Lead with warm pita for the true Be'er Sheva move, and leave one spoon as a courtesy prop. Guests who get it will scoop; everyone else still feels welcome. The hamburger lunch already covered the school side of Chol HaMoed.
